Sleeping up to 7 people, Four Seasons has a small master bedroom with a queen bed, and in the living area is a trio bunk & bunk. Quilts and pillows are provided, but guests will need to bring their linen (sheets, pillowcases, towels & tea-towels) with them for their stay.

Outside, the large deck across the front of the holiday house is where the most time will be spent, with 180-degree beach & seaviews; perfect for watching the sunrise and the dolphins cruising the bay. The deck has everything you need for a relaxing night by the beach, with an outdoor dining setting, and a hooded gas barbecue for cooking up a seafood feast.

There is direct beach access from Four Seasons with around 15 steps from the deck to the white sandy beach; and on your return there's an outdoor shower for washing off the sand and saltwater.

There is plenty of room for parking at with off-street parking for up to 4 cars, and room for a boat. The Black Point boat ramp is located within a few minutes' drive, making it the ideal choice for a fishing getaway.

Four Seasons is one of the classic holiday shacks of Black Point, which typically began as 1 or 2 rooms, and were added to as needed or as a family grew.
